Dear Friend,

Hurricane Harvey has caused widespread devastation in Texas and surrounding areas of the Gulf Coast. Survivors of domestic violence need your help to stay safe.

As the national member organization for the network of coalitions located in each U.S. state and territory, NNEDV is establishing a Disaster Relief fund. Donations collected through this fund will be sent to coalitions serving areas affected by natural disasters.

Donate now to support survivors in Hurricane Harvey-affected areas to use for disaster relief in domestic violence programs.

Domestic violence shelters face unusual challenges in the wake of a natural disaster. Shelters often have to evacuate many people at once, while taking into account specific safety needs. They may have to transport survivors to shelters a significant distance away, or work with community groups to set up temporary shelters to meet survivors' safety needs. Shelters often suffer damage and lose daily supplies needed to house survivors. Survivors who have lost belongings turn to shelter as their only resource for food, clothing, and other necessities.

Your donation will be used to provide financial assistance to shelters and survivors who are evacuating due to this natural disaster; to restock everyday supplies needed in local shelters; to provide food, clothing, and other necessities in disaster-affected shelters; and to support the work of rebuilding damaged facilities and programs interrupted by this natural disaster.

100% of funds received will go toward helping victims of domestic violence affected by Hurricane Harvey, so donate now.

Thank you for all that you do to help end domestic violence.

For peace and safety,
