

preventIPV

tools for social change

Intimate partner violence is preventable.

Primary prevention attempts to change the attitudes, beliefs, behaviors, environments and policies that contribute to violence and cultivate those that support and healthy and safe relationships. This is social change work.

Visit preventIPV.org to

- › Learn more about the primary prevention of intimate partner violence and the work of the IPV Prevention Council
- › Explore the impact that robust and sustainable prevention efforts can have on our culture
- › Discover lessons learned from innovative and ground-breaking primary prevention initiatives across the United States
- › Find user-generated tools that can be adapted in your community
- › Stay current on happenings of note in the prevention field